History and Overview

The SWS Feminist Activism Award, established in 1995, is presented annually to an SWS member who has notably and consistently used sociology to improve conditions for women in society. The award honors outstanding feminist advocacy efforts that embody the goal of service to women and that have identifiably improved women's lives. The 2020 award winner will be asked to present a lecture at an SWS meeting and on one U.S. or non-U.S. campus during the 2021-2022 academic year to share their expertise and experiences (lectures, workshops, and/or training sessions) of feminist activism. SWS will fund the campus visit (within specified limits) and the host campus will provide housing and meals. (Application guidelines for campus visits are announced in a separate call.)
